

The Yorke Peninsula Field Days Paskeville 2009 29th, 30th September & 1st October

Following a proposal from the Prostate Cancer Action Group, the Prostate Cancer Foundation of Australia (PCFA) has agreed to provide funding for a site at the Yorke Peninsula Field Days.

Paul Redman (PCFA) has advised the site will be shared with Independence Australia, a leading provider of health care services and products.

The Paskeville event is the largest of its type in SA and a total attendance in excess of 50,000 is anticipated.

The site that has been booked by the PCFA is a 6x3 metre indoor site and a trestle, chairs will be arranged.

The procedure will be to have a substantial range of brochures on display. Volunteers will be needed to speak to interested people on prostate cancer issues and awareness and encourage them to take as many brochures as they wish. For anyone who has not been involved in this type of activity before, it can be very rewarding.

This is a 3 day event and 4/6 volunteers will be required each day. No one will be expected to attend more than one day.

Transport costs will be met by the PCFA and a mini bus will be arranged for people from Adelaide. If circumstances require people to take their own vehicle, fuel costs will be paid by the PCFA.

It would be great if members of the various support groups could assist at the event which they should find a very worthwhile experience.
